

Technical report

Analyzing this problem, it was basically observed that it was similar to WorkShop 1, but in this case some additional requirements were requested, which led to the following decisions:

Technical decisions: It is observed how in this case the additional vehicles requested were added, on the other hand, the engine class was also modified, turning it into an abstract class so that the two types of engines, combustion and electric, could be created from it.